Contents

Series Editor's Preface vii
Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: Historians' Audiences 1
Donald A. Yerxa

Part 1. On Historians

The World War II Generation of Historians 7
William Palmer
History's Past and Present 13
Ellen Fitzpatrick
The Historian as VIP 20
Daniel Snowman
Historians and the Public: Premature Obituraies, Abiding Laments 27
Eric Arnesen

Part 2. On the American Historical Profession in the Twenty-first Century

The Future of the Profession 41
Bruce Kuklick
Ain't It Awful? You Bet. It Always Is. 46
Leo P. Ribuffo
Comment on Kuklick 54
Marc Trachtenberg

Part 3. On Writing History for the General Public

The Perils and Pleasures of Going "Popular"; or, My Life as a Loser 61
Maureen Ogle
Practicing History without a License 68
Adam Hochschild

Response to Hochschild 78
H. W. Brands
Response to Hochschild 81
John Demos
Response to Hochschild 84
Joseph J. Ellis
Response to Hochschild 88
John Ferling
Response to Hochschild 91
Felipe Fernández-Armesto
Response to Hochschild 94
Thomas Fleming
Response to Hochschild: A Correspondence 97
James Goodman and Louis P. Masur
Response to Hochschild 103
John Lukacs
Response to Hochschild 106
Joyce Lee Malcolm
Response to Hochschild 108
Wilfred M. McClay
Response to Hochschild 112
Greg Neale
Response to Hochschild 115
Joyce Seltzer
Response to Hochschild 117
Barry Strauss
Response to Hochschild 119
Derek Wilson
Response to Hochschild 122
John Wilson
Response to Hochschild 124
Jay Winik
A Reply 129
Adam Hochschild

Further Readings 133
Contributors 135
Index 139