

Alexander Badenoch | Andreas Fickers
Christian Henrich-Franke [eds.]

Airy Curtains in the European Ether

Broadcasting and the Cold War

Nomos

Contents

List of Acronyms (Organizations)	7
Airy Curtains in the European Ether: Introduction Alexander Badenoch/ Andreas Fickers/ Christian Henrich-Franke	9
I. Regulation and Control of Broadcasting in Cold War Europe
Threat or Beacon? Recasting International Broadcasting in Europe after World War II Jennifer Spohrer	29
Undermining a Dictatorship: International Broadcasts to Portugal, 1945-1974 Nelson Ribeiro	51
Cold War techno-diplomacy: Selling French Colour Television to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe Andreas Fickers	77
II. The European Communication Space and the Subversive Circulation Culture
Eavesdropping on Europe: The tape recorder and East-West relations among European recording amateurs in the Cold War era Karin Bijsterveld	101
Calling Out to Tune in: Radio Free Europe in Czechoslovakia Trever Hagen	123
Geographies of Power: The case of foreign broadcasting in dictatorial Romania Dana Mustata	149

III. Connections and Spill Overs:

Europe as a United Communication Space

Making Holes in the Iron Curtain? – The Television Programme Exchange across the Iron Curtain in the 1960s and 1970s Christian Henrich-Franke/ Regina Immel	177
Intervision song contests and Finnish television between East and West' Mari Pajala	215
To control the world's information flows – Soviet Cold War broadcasting Simo Mikkonen	241
“Removing Some of the Romantic Aura of Distance and Throwing Merciless Light on the Weaknesses of American Life”: Transatlantic Tensions of Telstar, 1961-1963 James Schwoch	271

IV. Disconnections and Fragmentations: Europe as a Jamming Session

Between Rock and Roll and a Hard Place: ‘Pirate’ radio and the Problems of Territory in Cold War Europe Alexander Badenoch	297
Jamming the RIAS. Technical Measures against Western broadcasting in East Germany (GDR) 1945–1989 Christoph Classen	321
Interfering with Auntie. An Uncomfortable Reception – Jamming the BBC Andy O’Dwyer	347

V. Conclusion

Broadcasting and the Cold War: Some preliminary results Alexander Badenoch/ Andreas Fickers/ Christian Henrich-Franke	361
List of contributors	375