Contents

List of Figures and Tables vii
Notes on Contributors viii
Acknowledgements xii

1 Introduction: The Scientization of the Social in Comparative Perspective
   Benjamin Ziemann, Richard F. Wetzell, Dirk Schumann, and Kerstin Brückweh 1

2 Embedding the Human and Social Sciences in Western Societies, 1880–1980: Reflections on Trends and Methods of Current Research
   Lutz Raphael 41

Part I Social and Penal Policy

3 Contesting Risk: Specialist Knowledge and Workplace Accidents in Britain, Germany, and Italy, 1870–1920
   Julia Moses 59

4 Politics Through the Back Door: Expert Knowledge in International Welfare Organizations
   Martin Lengwiler 79

5 Rationalizing the Individual – Engineering Society: The Case of Sweden
   Thomas Etzemüller 97

6 The Neurosciences and Criminology: How New Experts Have Moved into Public Policy and Debate
   Peter Becker 119

Part II Diagnosis and Therapy

7 The Psychological Sciences and the ‘Scientization’ and ‘Engineering’ of Society in Twentieth-Century Britain
   Matthew Thomson 141

8 Mental Health as Civic Virtue: Psychological Definitions of Citizenship in the Netherlands, 1900–1985
   Harry Oosterhuis 159

9 Human Sciences, Child Reform, and Politics in Spain, 1890–1936
   Till Kössler 179

10 Narcissism: Social Critique in Me-Decade America
    Elizabeth Lunbeck 198
Part III Polling, Marketing, and Organizations

11 Hearing the Masses: The Modern Science of Opinion in the United States
   Sarah E. Igo

   Anja Krake and Benjamin Ziemann

   Stefan Schwarzkopf

14 Business Organizations, Foundations, and the State as Promoters of Applied Social Sciences in the United States and Switzerland, 1890–1960
   Emil Walter-Busch

15 Catholic Church Reform and Organizations Research in the Netherlands and Germany, 1945–1980
   Benjamin Ziemann and Chris Dols

Index