This two-volume book project owes institutional support primarily to the University of Texas at Austin. Because of the institutional support provided by the University of Texas at Austin, and the German National Academic Exchange Corps (DAAD), the first six years of research were completed with the support of several summer research trips to the Institute of Social History in Amsterdam and Berlin, and the German National Academy of Sciences (DAAD) Faculty Research Grant. During the last year of support through the DAAD Faculty Research Grant, I was able to release time to focus on the final stages of the book. Not least, because of a 2015-2016 Institute for Advanced Study Fellowship at the Max Planck Institute for the History of Science in Berlin, and the remarkable book subvention grant from the University of Texas at Austin, the book is now a reality.

During the five years of authorship, I have been grateful to receive the support and encouragement of my colleagues and students at Cornell University, and for their feedback and insights. The members of my faculty and research assistant, Ben Brower, and Yoav Di-Carlo, provided insightful contributions to the book. Kit Belgum, Barbara McCloskey of the University of Miami, and the Free University of Berlin, provided invaluable feedback on the individual chapters and to benefit from their comments. Without their support, I would not have been able to complete the book.

In preparing the manuscript, Maxey who translated the quoted material into readable English and compiled the bibliographic data. The authors are grateful to the editors and reviewers of the journal Historical Socialisms Networks of the German Institute for the Social Sciences, for their comments and suggestions. The authors are also grateful to the editors of Socialisms Networks of the German Institute for the Social Sciences, for their comments and suggestions.
