

Contents

PART V. EDUCATION AND THE PRINCE

1. To Tommaso of Messina, the study of eloquence 2
2. To Giovanni Colonna of the Order of Preachers, demonstrating the power of examples by means of examples themselves 10
3. To Giberto, teacher of grammar from Parma, the training of boys and school education 18
4. To Paganino of Milan, that one should restrain one's desire for power, and on the best condition of the state 24
5. To Niccola Acciaiuoli, Grand Seneschal of the Kingdom of Sicily, the education of a prince 28
6. To the magnificent lord of Padua, Francesco da Carrara, the sort of man one should be to govern a state 50

PART VI. ROME, ITALY AND ITS RULERS

1. To Dionigi da Borgo Sansepolcro, congratulating him on going to Robert, a very great king and philosopher; also how association with distinguished men benefits tranquility of mind 98
2. To Robert, renowned king of Sicily 106

· CONTENTS ·

3.	To Barbato da Sulmona, on the death of King Robert of Sicily	112
4.	To Nicola, tribune of Rome, a rebuke mixed with urgent requests, over his changed reputation	116
5.	To Francesco of the Holy Apostles, about the name of poetry, now promiscuously used among the common and uneducated	122
6.	To the four cardinals delegated to reform the condition of the Roman Republic	136
7.	To Laelius, a dispute on several arguments which are apparently alleged by many against the glory of Rome	156
8.	To Andrea Dandolo, doge of Venice, exhorting him to make peace with the Genoese	170
9.	To Charles IV, king of Rome, an appeal urging him to come to Italy	188
10.	To Charles IV, congratulating him on his coming, however late	202
11.	To his dear Laelius, just as false glory is not worth seeking, so true glory is not to be despised	204
12.	To our Caesar, first a sweet offering of private thanks for his friendly intimacy, then a severe rebuke for deserting the republic and his empire, and finally a most urgent exhortation	220
13.	To Brother Giacomo of the Augustinian Order and tyrant of Pavia, an earnest and many-sided rebuke	238

PART VII. RELIGION AND THE CHURCH

1. To Annibaldo, cardinal bishop of Tusculum, against the greed of prelates 260
2. To his brother Gherardo, the Carthusian monk, about the happiness of his circumstances and miseries of the world, with an exhortation to perseverance in his intent 278
3. To a friend wavering about the Catholic faith 308
4. To Gherardo the Carthusian monk: what is the true philosophy and what the true law, and who is the best instructor in them both 318
5. To Giovanni [Boccaccio] of Certaldo, on the prophetic activity of the dying 340
6. To Urban V, pope of Rome, about the return of the Church to its seat, too long delayed and now to be delayed no longer 362
7. To Urban V, Roman pontiff, congratulating him for having led the Church back to its own seat and urging him to persevere 400

PART VIII. LETTERS TO THE ANCIENTS

1. To Pulice, poet of Vicenza, on the subject and origin of the following letters addressed to Cicero and Seneca and the others 426
2. To Marcus Tullius Cicero 434
3. To the same 438
4. To Annaeus Seneca 446

• CONTENTS •

5. To Marcus Varro	456
6. To Quintilian	464
7. To the historian Titus Livius	470
8. To the orator Asinius Pollio	474
9. Reply to a long letter containing many topics, sent under the name of Homer and dispatched from the Underworld	478

PART IX. MEMORY

1. To Guido Sette, archbishop of Genoa, on the changes in the times	502
2. To Posterity	542

Appendix I: Chronology of Events in Petrarca's Life	563
---	-----

Appendix II: Petrarca's Literary Works	573
--	-----

Appendix III: Biographical Notes on Petrarca's Correspondents	585
--	-----

Note on the Text and Notes	605
----------------------------	-----

Notes to the Translation	607
--------------------------	-----

Concordances	715
--------------	-----

Bibliography	723
--------------	-----

Cumulative Index to Volumes I and II	741
--------------------------------------	-----